A Girl's Guide: 48 Hours in Toronto, Canada

Use this checklist to help you find different places and areas to visit to help you plan a fun and filled 48-hour couple or girl's trip to Toronto.

Where we stayed and where we visited

- [ ] The Omni King Edward Hotel (great location in Downtown Toronto, easy walking distance to many different neighborhoods)
- [ ] St. Lawrence Market (huge market with meats, variety of seafood and cheeses)
- [ ] Eaton Centre Mall (huge indoor mall, lots of shopping)
- [ ] Kensington Market (funky and fun bohemian stores, bars, and restaurants)
- [ ] Rasta Pasta (amazing pasta and Jamaican food, located in Kensington Market, a must!)
- [ ] Queen West Shopping District (trendy area full of great boutiques, bars, and restaurants)
- [ ] Peter Pan Bistro (delicious restaurant in the Queen West neighborhood)
- [ ] CC Whiskey Lounge (great bar and perfect for any whiskey lover!)
- [ ] Distillery District (cobblestone streets and no cars are allowed)
- [ ] Cluny's (French bistro in The Distillery District)
- [ ] Cacao 70 (desserts and hot chocolate)
- [ ] Castle Loma (18th-century castle in the middle of Toronto)
- [ ] Bloor Street and Yorkville (upscale neighborhood in Toronto)

Road trip travel tips to Toronto, Canada

- [ ] Of course remember to bring your passport and any documents you need to cross the border

- [ ] Google maps will automatically add on an hour of time onto your trip to get through the border at customs but it didn't take us that long
- [ ] I suggest staying in downtown Toronto because it's a good central location to everything and you can easily walk to most areas
- [ ] If you use the CTA in Chicago you can easily get around on the TTC in Toronto, it works very similar
- [ ] I think the best way to explore and see a city is on foot, so bring good walking shoes

Head to the Girl's Guide Chicago blog to read about our 48-hour Toronto trip http://girlsguidechicago.com/48-hours-in-toronto-canada/