Coronavirus Checklist: What You'll Need To Have At Home In Case Of Quarantine

Thousands of U.S. citizens are under quarantine due to coronavirus exposure. They include people evacuated from Wuhan, China; passengers of the Diamond Princess cruise ship; and residents of a Washington state nursing home where four people recently died.

Which leads to the question: what should you have in your home emergency kit in case of a quarantine?

Food Supply

It's recommended that you stock up with enough food to last your household for two weeks, according to the U.S. Department of Homeland Security.
Your stockpile should mainly be comprised of canned foods that have a long storage life and need little or no cooking.
Some examples of foods to consider include
Nonperishables (grains, rice, oats, pasta)
Canned foods (beans, tomatoes, tuna, soup, fruits)
Baby food
Pet food
Don't forget to pack snacks and other comforting foods like coffee, chocolate, chips and crackers.
Although not essential, these foods can make a big difference in your mental wellbeing during the quarantine.

Water Supply

The American Red Cross also recommends that you have at least 1 gallon of water per day for each person in the household.
If your water is untreated, you'll need to buy water filters or water purification tablets to make it safe to drink. You can also stock up in other hydrating liquids like Pedialyte and Gatorade.
Hygienic Products
The CDC recommends regular hand-washing as the best and easiest way to protect yourself from coronavirus.
When stockpiling your quarantine kit, make sure to include hand soap, sanitizers and disinfectants.
Other hygiene items to buy include:
Toilet paper
Feminine care products
Tissues
Laundry detergent
Diapers (if you have a baby in the house)
Cat litter
Medicine
It's essential to have a ready supply of medicine and other health care products.
Aim to have at least a 30-day supply of your prescription medications, says infectious disease expert Marguerite Neill.
Aim to have at least a 30-day supply of your prescription medications, says infectious disease expert Marguerite Neill. Since most prescription drugs come with quantity limits, you can ask your doctor or insurance provider to help you submit an exception form.
Since most prescription drugs come with quantity limits, you can ask your doctor or insurance provider to help you submit
Since most prescription drugs come with quantity limits, you can ask your doctor or insurance provider to help you submit an exception form.
Since most prescription drugs come with quantity limits, you can ask your doctor or insurance provider to help you submit an exception form. You should also have:
Since most prescription drugs come with quantity limits, you can ask your doctor or insurance provider to help you submit an exception form. You should also have: A first aid kit to treat any injuries
Since most prescription drugs come with quantity limits, you can ask your doctor or insurance provider to help you submit an exception form. You should also have: A first aid kit to treat any injuries Safety goggles
Since most prescription drugs come with quantity limits, you can ask your doctor or insurance provider to help you submit an exception form. You should also have: A first aid kit to treat any injuries Safety goggles A thermometer Over-the-counter medications such as pain relievers, cough suppressants, vitamins and medicines to help you in case
Since most prescription drugs come with quantity limits, you can ask your doctor or insurance provider to help you submit an exception form. You should also have: A first aid kit to treat any injuries Safety goggles A thermometer Over-the-counter medications such as pain relievers, cough suppressants, vitamins and medicines to help you in case of vomiting or diarrhea.
Since most prescription drugs come with quantity limits, you can ask your doctor or insurance provider to help you submit an exception form. You should also have: A first aid kit to treat any injuries Safety goggles A thermometer Over-the-counter medications such as pain relievers, cough suppressants, vitamins and medicines to help you in case of vomiting or diarrhea.
Since most prescription drugs come with quantity limits, you can ask your doctor or insurance provider to help you submit an exception form. You should also have: A first aid kit to treat any injuries Safety goggles A thermometer Over-the-counter medications such as pain relievers, cough suppressants, vitamins and medicines to help you in case of vomiting or diarrhea. Other Items You don't want to become bored during your quarantine.
Since most prescription drugs come with quantity limits, you can ask your doctor or insurance provider to help you submit an exception form. You should also have: A first aid kit to treat any injuries Safety goggles A thermometer Over-the-counter medications such as pain relievers, cough suppressants, vitamins and medicines to help you in case of vomiting or diarrhea. Other Items You don't want to become bored during your quarantine. Consider having some board games, toys, books, magazines and other fun stuff to keep the family occupied.

Hand-cranked	d or battery-powered radio
Copies of you	ur health records and other personal documents
Emergency bla	lanket
Maps
Whistle
Plastic sheeting	ing	Make and Share Free Checklists
		checkli.com