Hamburger Design Checklist

Announcing a set of checklists to help you create smart interface design patterns.

- [ ] Can we avoid a hamburger icon and show navigation as is?
- [ ] Is the icon + padding large enough for comfortable tapping?
- [ ] If not, what icon do we choose to indicate navigation?
- [ ] Will the icon be at top left/'right, bottom left/right or floating?
- [ ] Can We push the icon down by placing logo on the top?
- [ ] What happens when the user clicks/taps on the icon?
- [ ] Will nav appear as full page/partial overlay, accordion or slide-in?
- [ ] If we use slide-in, do they appear above or below the header?
- [ ] How will the icon change on tap or on click?
- [ ] Will we have some sort of animation or transition on click?
- [ ] What happens when the user opens both search and hamburger?
- [ ] Do we expose critical navigation by default on desktop/mobile?
- [ ] Can users tap on the same spot to open/close navigation?
